PROJECTS SHOW SUCCESS OF FEDERAL FUNDING FOR ARTS ED

Webpage launched to highlight work of SSAE grant recipients throughout CA

Pasadena, CA (April 11, 2019) – The California Alliance for Arts Education is proud to announce the launch of its new webpage highlighting the outstanding work being done around the state by the recipients of the Student Support and Academic Enrichment (SSAE) grants in the Visual and Performing Arts.

To access the webpage go to:

https://www.artsed411.org/ssae_grants

This webpage is intended to provide transparency and accountability that will accompany the implementation of the statewide SSAE Grants in the Arts. As a field we are grateful to have this opportunity to explore innovative practices that support arts education and to share evidence of the impact these grants may have on the lives of students.

On this webpage we will provide links to each recipient of the SSAE Grants that focus on the arts. These links include general information about each individual grant project as well as any news articles or other public information related to the work being done around the state.

“This webpage will make information available to decision makers at the state and local level about the good work being done in school districts and counties, supported by federal funds for arts education. We intend to fulfil the promise of that investment with innovative practices that have an impact on the lives of California’s students by increasing access to high quality arts education,” said Joe Landon, Executive Director of the California Alliance for Arts Education.

In addition to the other resources made available by grant recipients, there is a link to the California State Department of Education webpage called “Collaboration in Common”, where recipients with common interests, resources and needs can connect and collaborate. For further information about the webpage contact Stan Miller at stantonmiller5@gmail.com.
